

Tibial nonunion (fracture did not heal) from over 40 years ago was treated with a tibiofibular synostosis (bone graft between the two bones in the leg). The fibula was cut and the tibia was then lengthened and realigned (central two x-rays) using a taylor spatial frame. Once realigned, the frame was removed, the bone edges cut, and the tibia was nailed.

