

Patient with a history of a surgically treated clubfoot that led to a dislocation of chopart's joint. An external fixator (center image) was placed to stretch the joint back into place followed by removal of the external fixator and fusion of the dislocated joint.

