

Subtalar and Lapidus fusion for a moderate flat foot

The talonavicular joint did not have to be fused in this case because the flat foot was not severe. The first tarsometatarsal joint was very unstable so it was fused (Lapidus). A tendon transfer (flexor digitorum longus) was performed to help maintain the position of the foot and talonavicular joint

