

Pilon fractures involve the tibial side of the ankle joint and typically have multiple fracture lines. Images of the initial injury (dislocation) are followed by ankle realignment using an external fixator followed by plating typically 1-3 weeks later once swelling allows. These fractures take around 12 weeks to heal and are much more serious than standard ankle fractures.

