

Multiple previous attempts at fusion of the large toe failed leading to significant bone loss. This required a large autograft from the patients pelvis to maintain length as well as a larger plate to restore the proper alignment and maintain length of the toe.

