

Extended chevron osteotomy

This is a modification of the popular chevron osteotomy that allows for much greater correction. An akin osteotomy of the toe was also performed to enhance the power of the correction. The Lapidus procedure can also be used for moderate to severe deformities. However it leads to more swelling and a longer recovery period which is why the extended chevron osteotomy is my preference.

